

A College Acceptance and BTB Update

Description

Hi Friends!

My family has great news! Our son, Dylan, was accepted early decision to UPenn/Wharton School, class of 2026! We are thrilled that he got in and plans to study statistics and data science. A huge thank you to Viewpoint School for being such an amazing place for both my kids. My daughter, Ryann, is junior at Northwestern Medill School of Journalism and she loves it.

In other news, this blog is going on hiatus officially until the Covid pandemic is over—or at least much less of a problem. We’ve posted sporadically and will continue to do so if private school news arises that we feel should be shared with our readers. We love our readers and can’t wait to have the bandwidth to keep writing here in this space. In the meantime, our archives date back to 2010 so they’re a great resource. Please don’t forget our book is available on Amazon and it has a ton of great information about navigating L.A. private schools! And, I try to respond to emails at csimon2007@gmail.com —all my best to everyone. Christina
